A piece of cartridge paper about eight inches by five. 1 Vol. v., p. 42. 10. A changing tube (as described at page 260, supra). 11. A black glove. The table stands from the outset of the performance in readiness upon the stage, and the various articles above specified are placed upon it. The cigar-box is turned with its open side away from the spectators, and behind it lies the changing tube, loaded with the black glove. The piece of cartridge paper is laid upon the cigar-box, in such manner that one of its ends may project over the back, and so mask the presence of the changing tube. The net servante is attached behind the right-hand side of the table (as viewed by the spectators) and on the table, just above it, lies the magic wand. The glass stands at the opposite end of the table; and close to it lies the prepared handkerchief. In the hat, which may either be already standing on the table or be brought in by the performer, are the two parti-coloured gloves. Or a borrowed hat may be used, these being loaded into it during the return to the table. The performer comes forward, wearing white gloves, and offers a few introductory remarks, making a special point of the fact that the tricks he is about to exhibit will be executed entirely without the aid of apparatus. The feats...
