Every dentist who has an x-ray machine, and every dentist who does not have an x-ray machine, should use the electric test for pulp vitality. In short the electric test is of the utmost value to any one who attempts dental diagnosis. It is often absolutely indispensable to correct diagnosis, of which fact the reader will be convinced, I believe, by reading Chapters X and XI. The writer has had most of the notes used in the writing of this little book in his possession since 1916, at that time, I dare say, there were not fifty dentists in the United States using the test. In the past four years the test has commenced to receive a wider recognition. But even yet only a comparatively few dentists use it. The reasons for this, it seems to me are: First, the value and importance of the test are not fully appreciated. Second, the necessity of acquiring knowledge of correct technic is not appreciated. Third, the dental electrodes in use are inadequate. Let us consider each of the foregoing. First, the value and importance of the test: I believe I am right...
