Horace John Wickham Envelope Printing and Folding Machine Side View After I became associated with the Plimpton Mfg. Co. at Hartford in the manufacture of envelopes, the company secured the contract to make the stamped envelopes for the United States Government, but it did not have machines enough to meet the terms of the contract. What machines the company did own could not produce envelopes fast enough or in sufficient quantities and the machines did not gum the flaps of the envelopes, and the cost of production was too great. The company tried to buy more envelope machines, but the owner of the patent refused to sell more of his machines. The company managed to purchase...
